ABOUT THE SEMINAR

Information is a tool that can help to eradicate the poverty and backwardness and improve the living conditions of women, schedule castes and tribes, minorities and other marginalised groups. Absence of appropriate mechanisms and limited resources at government level to disseminate important citizen related information has proved hurdle to access the information and derive benefits from public schemes in time. However, this situation can be improved through creating a systematic approach to deliver public schemes information to citizens and communities using both traditional and new methods supported by Information Communication Technology (ICT) tools and platforms. Further, this can be improved through capacity building of the stakeholders in a systematic manner over a period of time. These capacity building initiatives will also play a key role in promoting accountable and responsive panchayats and other government bodies to provision timely and relevant service delivery.

All relevant stakeholders including the local administration, the government agencies and departments, the NGOs and civil society organisations and other partners should step ahead and come forward to work in close coordination for improving accessibility of information about public schemes and successfully delivering their benefits to those who are most deserving. The bigger advantage of timely delivery and access of information services helps to stabilise our societies and communities and helps to address their various social, economic and educational needs. In the longer run, this promotes and strengthens our democracy through active citizen and communication participation and engagement.

WHY THE SEMINAR

The main goal of seminar is to build deep conceptual understanding of the public schemes, programme and process to avail the information or benefit. Stakeholder would get to know how the benefit can be reached to the last mile beneficiaries who are lagging behind in availing their rights which are actually meant for them. It would create opportunities to explore areas which are relevant for information dissemination and citizen entitlements, also share ideas in a way that will advance the thinking and actions of stakeholders in order to strengthen and develop capacities of local agencies to deliver services better.

OBJECTIVE

- To take stock, review the existing status of public schemes information dissemination in the district
- To understand the issues and challenges of citizen and community entitlements from public welfare schemes and programmes
- To understand and take stock of methods, ways and means to deliver public schemes information and provide final entitlements to citizens and communities.
- To explore new methods, ways and means to deliver public schemes information and provide entitlements through example sharing and exchange.
- To understand the status and scope for working together between the local administration, government agencies, NGOs and civil societies to improve the information dissemination environment.

EXPECTED OUTCOMES

- To have a better understanding of the public schemes information dissemination environment in the district
- To have a better understanding of the limitations of information dissemination and lack of citizen entitlements
- To map the existing methods and means to deliver information and entitlements
- To explore new ways and means to improve the delivery and access of information and entitlements in time

Group discussion in process

- To explore models of partnership and collaboration between the local administration, departments and agencies and the NGO and civil society organisation and other partners
- To work towards a better information democracy in the district and make the district a foremost district in best information dissemination and citizen entitlements in India.

SUMMARY

Zila Yuvak Kosh Samiti, a local non-profit organisation and Digital Empowerment Foundation (DEF) collectively organised a district level workshop on 17th November, 2015 at Hotel Kailash International in Barmer, Rajasthan. Participants varied from elected members of gram panchayat, district/block officials, social activists, local influential NGOs, CBOs, self-help group workers etc., primary health centre officials, bank officials and beneficiaries.

The main goal of the workshop was to build deep conceptual understanding of the public schemes, programme and process to avail the information and benefit. Stakeholder would get to know how the benefit can be reached to the last mile beneficiaries and who are lagging behind from their rights that are actually meant for them. Also, the workshop would create opportunities to explore areas relevant for information dissemination and citizen entitlements in more depth.

Sonaram Pala, member of Zila Yuvak Kosh Samiti inaugurated the event with a brief description about his organisation. He highlighted the efforts put forward by his NGO for the youth and the livelihood training provided to the underprivileged.

The event was carried forward by Shishir Purohit, District Manager of Soochna Seva. Through his presentation he briefly explained about the project's objective, focus area, feasibility, working area, way to work, current role of DEF/ Soochna Seva, people's participation and objective of the workshop.

Short movie clips about Soochna Seva Barmer, success story, etc. were shown to the participants for better understanding among them.

Syed Kazi, Deputy Director, Digital Empowerment Foundation and Program Director, Soochna Seva project presented the guests by giving a small sapling to each one of them. The purpose behind the sapling was to give a message of sharing the responsibility, building the ownership, making the environment green and spreading the knowledge just like the plant spread its branches.

He further spoke about information tool and its importance. How it can help to eradicate poverty and improve the living conditions of women, schedule castes and tribes, minorities and other marginalised groups.

For group discussion all participants were divided in six core groups, in which they discussed on following points:- (45 minutes activity)

1. To understand and review the issues and challenges in citizen and community entitlements from public welfare schemes and programmes
2. Review the existing status of Public schemes information dissemination in the district.

CONCLUSION:

The main aim of this report is to provide essence of the workshop that took place at Barmer district. It was organised to give space for exploring the areas which are relevant for information dissemination and citizen entitlements; also, share ideas that would develop the capacities of local agencies, in order to deliver citizen services better. A different approach was utilised in order to build a conceptual understanding about public schemes, programmes and process to avail information or benefit. The workshop gave platform for various stakeholders to interact, engage and debate under one roof about the challenges faced by citizens and communities, methods to deliver information about pubic schemes and working status of local bodies such as government agencies, NGOs and civil societies, towards improvement of the information dissemination environment.

The efforts were fruitful as the participants unravelled the grave issues that were hidden under the rubble of ignorance and suppression. Limitations of information dissemination and lack of citizen entitlement were broadly discussed. There were recommendations about redefining the delivery and access of relevant information so that it could effectively reach the last mile beneficiary.

Shortcomings of the government delivery framework were identified and recommendations were made to improve partnership and collaborations between government agencies, NGOs and civil societies so that they acknowledge information dissemination as their collective responsibility.
